The prospects for an amicable adjustment of what differences there may be between the miners and operators of this state are encouraging. There is every indication that there will be no miners will continue at their work with- Frank G. Bland, druggist. out embarrassment. If necessary to maintain such conditions, the operators UNCLE TOM'S CABIN mable the fields, where there has been a conflict. Both miner and operator may ex pect this to be the greatest and best year in the history of the mining industry in this state, provided they do not permit themselves to be seperated in the work. Cordial relations and hearty cooperation will bring wonderful results to both, and be of great benefit to the public in general. That it will be the greatest coal producing year in West Virginia no one has the slightest doubt and steady operations are encouraged by all who have the state's best interests at heart.

The comments of business men from the great American metropolis, when they come to Clarksburg, are worthy of note. They alight at the depot and behold wagons and other vehicles, almost without number, heavily loaded, and wonder about the cause of it. They are amazed to see the large amount of this sort of traffic and do not hesitate to express their surprise. Coming from a large city they know that such activity indicates industry and commerce. They say that New York does not beat us when size is taken into consideration and that there is more of this sort of traffic here than in that city in proportion. In this connection, it is a matter of doubt whether there is another city in West Virginia where there is so much hauling done as there is in Clarksburg. The principal streets are lined all the time with wagons and every one of them seems to be in a rush. Such conditions mean business in the various lines, and plenty of it. The only bad feature about it is so much travel is hard on the streets and, of course, they soon become wern and do not present the appearance they did years ago, when the sod was green on them. It is a good sign that the streets present a worn appearance. That condition shows that there is activity and that business cireles are wide awake. It is a gratification that there is opportunity and cause for the streets to be worn, but, of rheumatism and neuralgia and expels ma course, as a consequence of these con- laria germs. Only 50c, and satisfaction pany, has been announced for an early ditions, there must be constant expendi- guaranteed by Frank G. Bland, drugture upon them to keep them in condi- gist.

tion and even then, under the circumstances, it is almost an impossibility to keep up with the procession in this respect. Only those who do not realize the great amount of heavy hauling that is done and who have no business interests to direct their attention to the situation are the ones who make so much riticism about bad roads. Some would still rather see the sod growing in the middle of the thoroughfares as in olden time than to see them worn with traffic so essential to progress. Those who appreciate the changed business conditions, while they may make some crit icism, are not harsh about it, for the reason that they know there is good cause for the streets being worn. They are gratified that there is opportunity to wear them, but they, like all who have the interests of the city at heart. insist that they be kept in as good condition as possible under the circum-

Amusements

" THE TWO SISTERS."

The dramatic story of Denman Thomp on and George W. Ryer's play, "The Two Sisters," runs mainly through inidents in the lives of a bad woman from the east and a good man from the west Of course both sections have their good and bad and they are shown in this re narkably clever play. But there are o resque situations or the slightest sug gestion that might bring the blush o hame to the cheek of modesty. It's the story of life and love, of hope and lisappointment and the happy realization that always comes at the prope time to those that suffer and wait. You will recognize all the characters, every community has them, and they will give ou infinite amusement because they wil dways be saying and doing the very things you know they would naturally say and do. There's no straining afte effect or going to France, Italy, or any other far-away place to bring characters on the stage, and you can never by and possibly know-except as an in finite impossibility. "The Two Sisters" s a play of home and love, of the peo ple you know and like, that you can augh at any sympathize with. And they will all be here on Saturday, March 28. at the Grand opera house.

IN SIX WEEKS

More Professor Nott's Dancing Schoo will close. If you wish to learn to dance perfectly, lon't wait, for this opportunity will pas by. You will be taught in ten lessons. You cannot be taught to dance (waltz and two-step) perfectly in but one other school in the United States in ten les ons, and for $5. That's right.

All the children in the afternoon claswaltz, two step, floradora, and two ste ancers perfectly, besides their deport nent is unsurpassed. They are now be ing taught the beautiful and graceful 'Physical Culture Dances" (that people n New York are paying $3 a lesson for) without extra charge.

ADELAIDE THURSTON.

Dainty and pretty little Adelaide Thurston, supported by her fine comoany, is going to be seen here in her atest success, "At Cozy Corners," on Wednesday night, April 1st, at the Grand opera house. The play is a comedy frama with some thrilling scenes. The production has been much admired elsewhere for its purity, poetical sweetness and general truthfulness to nature. The scenic features are described as splendid Miss Thurston's engagements are designated everywhere as society events.
